PART ONE

The Brand

Positioning, voice, narrative — the high-level brand. Read this section and you understand who Inditress is.

01

The Position

TAGLINE

The Honest Hair
Company.

Locked. Goes everywhere — packaging hangtag, website footer, About-page eyebrow, founder email signature, Year-1 social bios. Never punctuated as a question or exclamation. Never compressed. Never translated.

BRAND PROMISE

Factory-direct. Batch-level transparency. Made for the professional.

Three beats — what we are, what we do, who it is for. Each beat operationally non-negotiable. The home-page hero is this promise expanded.

THREE-WORD DESCRIPTOR

Raw. Honest. Grounded.

Use as the descriptor of last resort: business cards, About-page subhead, founder bio.

Archetype

The Maker. Close cousin of the Sage and the Craftsman. Deep expertise · plain language · proof over performance · service to the practitioner, not the spotlight.

The Maker archetype works most powerfully when it operates with restraint. Inditress speaks in the register of the practitioner who knows what they made and refuses to oversell it.

REFERENCE BRANDS

- Leica — quiet, technical, dignified.
- Hasselblad — the maker of the maker's tool.
- Dyson — engineering as identity.
- Bang & Olufsen — premium component register.
- Muji-industrial — restraint as luxury.
- Aesop — in posture, not visual style.
- Patagonia — origin and craft photography.

BRAND-INTERNAL POSITIONING SENTENCE

| Transparency is the product. Hair is the output.

Not customer-facing. Governs every brief downstream — agency, photographer, developer, copywriter. Lives in the brand book and the agency / vendor brief.

YEAR-1 STRATEGIC DIFFERENTIATOR

Championing transparency. None of Inditress's named competitors lead with transparency. White space confirmed. The first 18 months of all messaging organise around this one move.

02

Vision · Mission · Purpose

VISION

To give Indian hair the place it deserves in the global market.

MISSION

To be the most trusted source of real Indian hair — by naming what others hide, manufacturing what others outsource, and proving consistency batch over batch.

PURPOSE

Inditress exists because the hair industry has built its premium tier on misrepresentation. Suppliers blend, mislabel, and overpromise. The professionals who build their reputations on quality — stylists, salon owners, resellers — pay the cost of that dishonesty in returned product, lost clients, and damaged trust.

Inditress was built so that one brand on the market would refuse to play that game.

Master Narrative

The lead block on the About page. Subsequent blocks cover how we work, who we work with, how we partner, and the closing line.

EYEBROW

Founder's note

HEADLINE

This did not start as a business idea.

BODY

About twelve years ago, a simple request to help source Indian hair led to an uncomfortable discovery.

Hair was being mixed, relabelled, and sold under terms that had no consistent meaning. What buyers received depended less on what was promised, and more on what happened behind the scenes.

At that time, most Indian hair — despite being the largest global source — was exported as raw material and processed elsewhere. Very few players were building controlled manufacturing systems at origin.

Indi Tress was built in response to that gap.

Not to market better. But to understand sourcing, processing, and quality at a level where it could be repeated — not guessed.

Over the last decade, we have worked closely with professional buyers, retailers, and brands to develop shades, textures, and quality that hold over time.

We are still learning. And we continue to build systems that make the industry more transparent than we found it.

ABOUT-PAGE CLOSING LINE

The hair is the brand.

Closes the About page beneath all section blocks. Also closes the founder film. Also appears as an eyebrow on the Shop page.

The B2B Brand Visibility Model

Inditress is a B2B factory brand. The buyer is a hair professional — stylist, salon owner, multi-store wholesaler — who resells the product under her own name. The end consumer never sees the Inditress wordmark on packaging.

THREE END-CONSUMER TOUCHPOINTS — TOTAL

- The ITS™ mark + QR code on the bundle hangtag.
- The QR keepsake landing page — when she scans, she enters the designed Inditress experience.
- Subtle brand cues — colours, shapes, words used by the reseller that may or may not register consciously.

Surface-by-surface visibility

SURFACE	BRAND VISIBILITY	AUDIENCE
Website (inditress.com)	Full – wordmark, tagline, master narrative	B2B buyer
Pitch deck, sample kit, business card	Full – wordmark + tagline + ITS™ mark	B2B buyer
Reseller-shipped bundle	Zero – transparent plastic bag. No box, no insert, no certificate.	End consumer
Bundle hangtag	ITS™ mark + QR code only – no wordmark, no naming	End consumer
QR keepsake landing page	Full Inditress experience – the only context the end consumer enters	End consumer
Reseller co- brand toolkit	Subtle – palette, shapes, vocabulary cues (no wordmark)	End consumer (indirect)

OPERATIONAL IMPLICATIONS

- The wordmark is B2B-only – never on packaging or end-consumer touchpoints.
- The ITS™ mark is the consumer-facing brand – it carries the entire brand presence in front of the Layer 2 wearer.
- Packaging is intentionally minimal – bundles ship in a transparent plastic bag with the ITS™ hangtag attached. No box. No insert. No certificate.
- Reseller incentive is aligned – she wants the ITS™ mark on the bundle because it does the trust-signalling work for her.

Voice

VOICE DESCRIPTOR

Calm authority. Precise.
Grounded. Honest.
Assured. Never loud.
Never exaggerated.
Always real.

THE VOICE — VOICE B, CONFIDENT FOUNDER

Inditress speaks like the founder speaks: declarative, plainspoken, technically literate, and unafraid of silence. The brand says less than its peers, with cleaner language. It refuses warmth-as-performance. It uses specifics where peers reach for adjectives.

The seven writing rules

- 1. Say what is true. Then stop.
- 2. Specifics, not adjectives.
- 3. Voice over warmth.
- 4. Trusted, not luxurious.
- 5. Tell, don't sell.
- 6. No exclamation marks. No discount theatre.
- 7. The first person plural is the founder, not a marketing team.

Full kept / broken examples in Appendix C.

THE INDITRESS SENTENCE-SHAPE – OBSERVATION → TRUTH → CONCLUSION

Every Inditress claim moves through three beats: an observation (what is empirically the case), a truth (what that case actually means), a conclusion (what follows for the buyer).

Anyone can deliver a good first batch.
Very few can deliver the second.

THE FINAL PRINCIPLE (THE TEST BEFORE PUBLISHING)

If it feels like marketing, remove it. If it feels real, keep it.

PART TWO

The System

Type, colour, the ITS™ mark, photography.
The visual layer that carries the brand. Read this section and you can produce work that feels like Inditress.

Type — Manrope

A single-typeface brand. Manrope across every surface — wordmark, display, headings, body, UI, captions, micro. The brand says less, with cleaner type, than any peer in the category.

The Wordmark

The Inditress wordmark is the brand's typographic signature on every B2B-facing surface. Set in Manrope SemiBold with open letter-spacing — rendered as type, not as a custom drawn glyph. The wordmark is text in a discipline.

INDITRESS

— The Honest Hair Company. —

SPECIFICATIONS – LOCKED

ATTRIBUTE	VALUE
Typeface	Manrope (the locked single typeface).
Weight	SemiBold (600). The only place SemiBold is deployed in the system.
Case	All caps. Always.
Letter spacing	+16% (open caps for the wordmark register). At hero scale, +18%.
Colour	Charcoal #1A1A1A on ivory or bone. Inverse: ivory on charcoal. No other colours.
Clear space	Equal to 1× the wordmark height on all four sides. No graphic, image, or type may enter the void.
Minimum size	30mm wide for the lockup with tagline. 20mm wide for wordmark-only.
Pairing	Wordmark always pairs with the tagline on primary brand surfaces. Wordmark-only is allowed only when the tagline appears nearby (e.g. footer block).

Lockup variations

Colour

Bone or ivory dominates 95% of every surface. Charcoal is the only primary type colour. Saffron appears at <5% surface area as the single Indian-heritage accent.

Bone #F5F1E9	Ivory #FAF6EE	Charcoal #1A1A1A	Saffron #D67D2E

SURFACE ALLOCATION

COLOUR	ALLOCATION	WHERE IT LIVES
Bone	95% canvas — warm	Packaging interiors (when used) · sample-kit inserts · founder-film backdrops
Ivory	95% canvas — cool	Website · pitch deck · product still-life. Interchangeable with Bone — pick by surface temperature.
Charcoal	Type colour. Only.	All body type, headlines, borders. No greys in body type.
Saffron	<5% (accent)	ITS™ mark dimension dots · packaging seal · micro-accent on the website. Never floods.

DEPLOYMENT RULES

- The 5% rule. Saffron occupies less than 5% of any single surface.
- The no-flood rule. Saffron is never a background. Never a CTA button. Never a heading colour at scale.
- The natural-product-colour exception. Brown tones in photography (hair, workbenches, factory floor) are not brand colours — they are unmediated product / place texture.
- Accessibility. Charcoal-on-Ivory passes WCAG AAA (>15:1) for body text. Saffron passes AA only at >18pt — saffron reserved for accents and large-display use only.

The certification that travels on every bundle.

The locked mark — square form · dots + QR · 120mm insert scale · primary treatment

It does not claim superiority. It claims traceability and disclosure.

Anatomy

Two zones inside a square charcoal-bordered frame. The form is the recognition signal — without the border and the divider rule, the dots and QR would read as two unrelated elements. The frame says these belong together.

ZONE 1 · FIVE DIMENSIONS (TOP 28% OF INNER CONTENT)

- Five dots — saffron filled circles, equally spaced. Symbolic at v1 — all five always render filled. Each dot represents one Dimension of Transparency.
- Letter labels — single letters O · C · P · P · S beneath each dot in Manrope. Always in this order: Origin, Cuticle, Processing, Performance, Supply. Two adjacent P's is intentional.

ZONE 2 · QR ACCESS (BOTTOM 72% OF INNER CONTENT)

- Square QR code — encodes a URL of the form [inditress.com/its/b/\[BATCH-ID\]](https://inditress.com/its/b/[BATCH-ID]). The batch reference travels in the URL.
- Density spec — version 2 (25×25 modules) at minimum, error correction level M.

REPRODUCTION

- Minimum size: 30mm wide. Below this the QR loses scan reliability.
- Aspect: 1:1 square, locked.
- Three colour treatments — primary (charcoal-on-ivory + saffron dots), inverse (ivory-on-charcoal + saffron dots), monochrome (charcoal-only fallback).

Full mark spec, all reproduction sizes, all colour treatments — Inditress-ITS-Mark-Suite-v3.docx.

Photography Direction

Documentary-editorial. Available light. Single-source. Single-shadow. Generous space. Warm-neutral grading. The work of a serious manufacturing company that respects what it makes — photographed with restraint.

THE RIGHT REGISTER

- Apple — craftsmanship campaign work.
- Hasselblad — quiet, technical, dignified treatment of the maker.
- Magnum / NYT Magazine — documentary editorial.
- Aesop interior photography — restrained palette, generous space, no drama.
- Patagonia — origin and craft photography.

THE WRONG REGISTER

- Bellami / UNice / Indique — beauty advertising.
- Stock photography in any form.
- Hair-extension Instagram-grid — flat lighting, white seamless backgrounds.
- Tourist-India clichés — saris, marigolds, spice markets.
- Heavy retouching — beauty-counter skin smoothing.

B2B-FUNNEL VS END-CONSUMER PHOTOGRAPHY

B2B-funnel surfaces (website, pitch deck, sample kit, factory tour brief) feature factory, hands, QC, founder, and partner-archetype imagery. No end-consumer faces.

End-consumer photography lives only on the QR keepsake landing page — one to two carefully composed end-consumer-wearing-the-hair frames. Casting note: ≥50% of frames feature Black / African-diaspora women.

Full directorial brief – Inditress-Photography-Directorial-Brief.docx.

Packaging — Minimal by Design

Inditress ships every bundle in a transparent plastic bag. No outer box, no insert, no certificate of authenticity, no Inditress wordmark anywhere on the visible packaging.

The minimal packaging is a deliberate brand position, not a budget constraint. Three reasons:

- It defers fully to the reseller — she ships the bundle to her end client under her own branding. Inditress packaging is invisible upstream of the reseller's design system.
- Transparency is structural — Inditress sells a system, not a product. The transparent bag declares: there is nothing to hide.
- The mark does the work — what the reseller and her end client interact with is the hangtag, not the box. The hangtag is the only physical brand artefact.

WHAT SHIPS IN THE TRANSPARENT BAG

- The hair bundle — finished, graded, batch-tagged.
- An Inditress hangtag attached to the bundle. The hangtag carries only the ITS™ mark — no wordmark, no name. The QR on the mark links to the batch disclosure page.

Nothing else.

THE B2B SAMPLE KIT (SEPARATE ARTEFACT)

When a B2B prospect requests a sample, Inditress ships a designed sample kit — outer box with the wordmark, the bundle in transparent bag inside (per shipping standard), pre-lightened strand vial, ITS™ explainer leaflet, batch disclosure card, founder note. The B2B sample kit is a first-impression artefact, not the ongoing shipping standard.

System Applications

All system applications shown are typographic mockups. Real photographs replace placeholder rectangles in v5 of the brand guide once the Haryana shoot lands.

One block per dimension. Saffron dot on the left, dimension name + batch-specific value on the right. Each block scrolls vertically — no tabs, no toggles.

06 · INSPECTOR + CLOSER

Named QC inspector + brand line

Named human accountability — the QC inspector who graded this batch. Closes with Traceability replaces argument.

DEPLOYMENT NOTES

- Mobile-first. 100% of QR scans are mobile. Desktop is a degradation, not a primary surface.
- No homepage redirect. The QR resolves directly to [inditress.com/its/b/\[BATCH-ID\]](https://inditress.com/its/b/[BATCH-ID]). The user never lands on the marketing site mid-journey.
- No marketing overlays. No newsletter signup, no popups, no promotional banners. The page is the data.
- Manrope across every line. Single-typeface discipline holds even in mobile rendering — display weights at 13–14pt, body at 7.5pt, dimension labels in Medium with letter-spacing.
- Saffron used only on dimension dots and version stamp. Same 5% rule applies in mobile. No saffron CTAs.
- Performance lock. Page weight under 200KB. Single web font load (Manrope variable). Video module lazy-loads on tap.

v1 reference design — refined in Stage 4 build. The architecture is locked; the visual proportions and exact spacing values may shift in build against actual mobile viewport metrics.

BUYER-EMPATHY SECTION (SCROLL 1)

If you've sourced hair before, you've likely experienced this.

The sample performs well — the next shipment doesn't. "Double drawn", "virgin", "Remy" — but no clarity behind the terms. Inconsistency across batches with no explanation. No real accountability once the product is delivered.

Most sourcing problems are not about hair quality. They are about lack of clarity, lack of systems, and lack of accountability.

REFUSAL POSTURE (PARTNER APPLICATION PAGE)

Inditress does not work with buyers whose first question is price.

We work with stylists, salon owners, and resellers building long-term reputations on consistent quality. If that is not you, this is not the supplier you are looking for.

HOW PARTNERSHIPS ACTUALLY START

We would rather lose a large order than win the wrong partnership.

1. Conversation. 2. Sample. 3. Small order. 4. Scale only after consistency.

Strap lines — paste anywhere on theme

Traceability replaces argument.

Consistency is not achieved at the end.
It is designed into the process.

If it does not pass internally, it does not ship.

The hair is the brand.

FOUNDER FILM OPENING

Appendix D

Glossary

From the Inditress Transparency Standard™. Used as the basis for every batch-disclosure page and every partner conversation. These definitions are descriptive, not promotional.

TERM	DEFINITION
Raw hair	Hair in its natural state immediately after collection. Raw status describes the condition of the hair after collection – not its quality level.
Hair origin	The country where the raw hair was originally collected – not where it was later processed or marketed. India is widely recognised as the largest global source of raw human hair, primarily through temple donations.
Donor hair	Hair collected directly from an individual donor (ponytail or temple). Donor status describes collection method, not chemical history.
Collected hair	Hair gathered from salon cuttings, combings, or mixed sources. Often requires more processing for alignment and uniformity.
Cuticle alignment	Hair cuticles oriented in a single direction (root-to-tip). Alignment can be natural (donor hair) or mechanical (collected hair processed through alignment equipment). Alignment describes direction, not overall quality.
Virgin hair	Hair that has not undergone chemical treatment – no dyeing, bleaching, perming, or relaxing.
Processed hair	Hair that has been chemically altered. Processing affects behaviour, longevity, and stability.
Single drawn	Reflects natural distribution of hair strand lengths within a ponytail – thickness gradually tapers toward the ends.
Double drawn	Sorted and aligned from both root and tip – different lengths removed and redistributed so the bundle appears thicker and fuller toward the ends. A fuller appearance does not automatically indicate higher overall quality.
